Firstly, I want to talk about some of the features. First of all, in addition to the previous game's "collect" feature of collecting different enemies that appear on the map, you can now collect items, as well as skills that can be assigned to the keys on the right, left, and middle of your keyboard. There are various types of enemies and items, which you can directly tap. You can easily change the elements of all kinds of weapons. You can easily combine elemental attributes with one another, and gain the ability to create a powerful weapon. You can equip armor with elemental protection. Equipment that include elemental energy are skill-linked. Elemental attributes that are applied to equipment are not purely passive, and use is possible in a variety of situations. By pressing on the elements that the equipment includes, you can change the attribute of the item you have equipped and make it extraordinary. You can easily create a party that is made up of up to 10 characters from the same world. The newly added world also includes a black-and-white dungeon that feels like the wall of a gray area is getting closer. By collecting various bosses, each with its own appearance, you can enter the dungeon and fight for an opportunity to get even more experience. The sense of progress that you receive for completing the dungeon is a sense of growth and pleasure that the game does not have. With our heroes all having different stats, the damage they inflict is adjusted based on their level. That being said, you can easily earn a level-up just by collecting enemies in the field. You can easily acquire and learn skills as you play. Listed below is a screenshot taken from the time when the game's development is almost finished. As you can see, I'm currently ranting, so for now, take care of your health. Right now, I'm going to talk about the multiplayer element. As for the gameplay, using the power of the Elden Ring Cracked Accounts to perform a special attack, you need to build up your command skill (the number of commands you can use in a row). While building up command, while performing a combination attack with one of your assigned keys, one of the elements that the target possesses will be accumulated in your hand as energy, and you will be able bff6bb2d33
